HERE AND THERE

Mr. C. C. Ball; the Mayor of Hen derson, died very suddenly last week About Sam Jones at Owensboro the Henderson Journal says :

Sam Jones is certainly the greatest drawing attraction of the day. In a meeting for men only at Owensboro Sunday night there was seven thousand men from 18 up-a number about equal to the total number of voters in Henderson county. After he had in his usual style denounced gambling, drinking, profanity and licenteousnes he asked everybody who endorsed every word he had said to stand up, and everybody stood up. At the close of the meeting some twelve or fifteen hundred went up, asked prayer and announced their purpose to lead a better life. The immense crowd of men was an interesting sight, and Jones was probably right when he said that the oldest man in the house had never seen the like before and probably never would again.

The question having been asked, What did Paducah give Rev. Sam Fulton, Ky., May 8.—From J. D. Both of the Mayfield papers of this week, strangely enough, mention Judge J. E. Robbins, of Mayfield, as among the probable candidates to succeed Chief Justice Bennett. There are growing indications that the able and popular Chief Justice is to have a fight on his hands to hold his seat next year.

Hopkinsville has come to the front with a murder, the first for several years. Last Thursday night Will Beamer, engineer of a flying jenny, or revolving swing, on Sixth Street, was shot dead at his engine by a man who shot him twice and disappeared in the Mr J J Bennett, wife and daughter darkness. He dropped his hat and pistol, which proved to be the property of Rich Phelps, a colored saloonkeeper, and the next day Phelps was arrested and after some show of surprise finally admitted that he had done the killing, but claimed that the shooting was in self defense .- Hopkinsville own house, by simply pressing an electric button. The doors can be opened or closed in the same way.

Each house is 12 feet long by 10 wide, of matched pine. The roof is covered with 2-ply tarred roofing felt, and the sides are lined with single ply tarred paper. The floor, is covered in winter with a good coating of dry earth. This is to stop any drafts from coming up through the floor, and also to provide a good dust bath for the hens. The roof should be painted occasionally with coal tar. Once a year is sufficient. An hour's sun shining on the black surface will warm up the inside of the house almost equal to glass, and it will hold the heat much better. The first cut shows the plan of one house facing to the east.

The second cut shows the feeding trough used for the morning feed. II has put in the feed, the hens will find it impossible to get into the feed with their feet or to deposit any droppings in it. If now you raise the board a few inches, their breakfast is ready. Now raise the it takes a lively Biddy to scratch any litter from the floor into it. The cover is fastened in place with hinges for conrenience in feeding. The drinking foun

s constructed on the same principle. It is simply a 4-quart pressed tin basin set under a board that projects an inch or more on all sides.

Above the private lien entrance shown in the first cut is placed the electrical feedbox or hopper. The small door which closes this entrance is hung on pulleys and drops of its own weight when the catch which holds it is recovers an opening in the bottom of the feedbox, allowing the grain to fall to the floor. In falling it strikes a metal disk, which scatters it and warns Biddy that supper is ready. It is interesting work to feed a large flock in this way. As one touches the button he seems to touch a nerve in each individual mem-ber of the flock. Instantly every head goes up, and away they all go home to supper. The cost of lumber and material for such a house is about $25.

It is found that the number publicly re ported to be on the steamers was less than one-half, probably not more than one-third, the number actually on board. The Empress of Japan report ed 400, and when she arrived 1,002 were on board. Six hundred and fifty-seven of these were destined for the United States, and twelve of them came across from Victoria at night in small skiffs, the skipper receiving $25 a head for landing them. A dozen left in a yawl on the 29th to be landed at Port Townsend. It is reported they pay $175 to be landed in the United States, $60 of which goes to

That Made in China Many Years Ago Through Chinese

[St. James Gazette.]

It may be safely asseted that not one of his Episcopal brethren has ever performed such a feat as formed an episode in the carly life of the newly appointed Bishop of Norwich. After serving a couple of years as curate under Dr. Brooks at Leeds, Mr. Sheepshanks went out to British Columbian in 1859, when that colony was a far wilder and more isolated country than now. He did eight years of the rough work and then determined to go home for a holiday, at They had only been married a couple all events, electing to travel via Japan and China, in those days a by no means familiar route. For months he disappeared entirely from mortal ken and his family began to entertain serious misgivings as to his fate.

> One evening a young Cambridge man, afterward head master of a wellknown grammar school, but tutor for the nonce to a Russian Prince, was smoking a cigarette in his rooms in St. Petersburg, when his servant announced that a moujik wanted to see him very urgently. The unknown visitor was shown up, and appeared in the brothes Cantab desirous of securing his good offices. The man, in short, was Rev. John Sheepshanks, who, near the mouth of the Amoor River, had made his way alone and on foot through Tartary, Turkestan and Siberie to the banks of the Neva.

How and When to Do This Work-Benefits

With the exception of the grains, grass es and potatoes a large share of the labor of the agriculturist consists in the transplanting of plants from their original seedbed to the places they are to occupy permanently. In most cases these removals if carefully performed are without injury to the plants concerned, and in some cases with positive benefit. With comparatively few exceptions, our prolucing fruit trees have all been trans-Pacific employ Chinese while they are preparing to get over the line.
